Simple enough to repeat.

Use the product like a system, not a one-off download. The point is to make the next useful move obvious and easy to repeat.

Day 1 to Day 3

Day 1: review three money decisions. Day 2: cancel one leak. Day 3: move one transfer that keeps the month honest.

Day 4 to Day 5

Day 4: text one person about one bill or plan. Day 5: clean one subscription or fee that keeps showing up.

Day 6 to Day 7

Day 6: check one budget line. Day 7: write the next week's plan so the momentum does not disappear.

What the bundle actually tracks.

This page gives the short version of the worksheet so the product feels concrete before anyone clicks the download.

Days 1 through 7, one rep per day, done status, and notes on what changed.

What makes the week work

Keep the rep small enough to finish. Small wins stack. The goal is consistency, not performance.

Best first win

Complete Day 1 before trying to optimize the rest of the week.

The product is a step, not the finish line.

Use the download, then route people back into the funnel. Blueprint first, Beacons next, Messenger when they are ready to talk, and Spotify to keep the story warm.
